Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Life, Labours and Doctrines of Confucius In order obtain a clear notion of our subject, it is desirable to explain ho Confusions was, and the condition of the social life amid which he lived. If the reader will look at the map, he will be surprised to see that the China of those days was practically confined to the valley of the Hwang Ho, (which means Yellow-River), taken in its broadest sense. I mean that the river which is commonly spoken of as China s Sorrow, has at different periods entered the sea through channels both north and south of its present course; has, in fact, taken temporary possession of other river valleys and channels. The China of Confucius time was, then, confined to the tract of country east of the Great Bend, where the river leaves Tartary for good; and was enclosed or bounded north and south by the most outerly of those streams which have at any time been connected with the Yellow River system. We know very little of China previous to Confucius time (sixth century before Christ), but what little we do know was sifted for us and transmitted by Confucius. We may sum it up in a few words. The written character in an antique form had certainly existed for several thousand years, but it is quite uncertain how many: the best authorities say 3, 000, that is 5, 000 from now. Very recent discoveries in Babylonia have revealed to us original Sumerian cuneiform records on a wholesale scale, written in clay, and dating at least 5, 000 years back; but there are no such original ancient records...
